The American Center of Research promotes study, teaching, and increased knowledge of the ancient and contemporary region, with Jordan as a focus. Supporting Jordanian students and scholars is a critical part of that mission.

The leading scholarship program is the Jordanian Graduate Student Scholarship, which supports four graduate students annually.

Three of the American Center’s named fellowships support Jordanian scholarship. The Frederick-Wenger Memorial Fellowship funds specifically Jordanians, and the Russell Memorial and the Sauer Memorial Fellowships alternate so that each year one of the two is supporting a Jordanian student.

Finally, there is an annual travel award given so that a Jordanian graduate student or working professional can deliver an academic paper at a high-quality international conference held in the United States or Canada.
Two scholarships to assist Jordanian graduate students with the annual costs of their academic programs during the period May 1 of the award year through May 31 of the following year. Candidates must be Jordanian citizens and enrolled in either a Master's or Doctoral program in a Jordanian university at the time of their application. Eligibility is limited to students in programs related to Jordan’s cultural heritage (for example: archaeology, anthropology, linguistics/epigraphy, history, conservation, museum studies, and cultural resource management related issues). Awarded who demonstrate excellent progress in their programs will be eligible to apply in consecutive years.

JORDANIAN GRADUATE STUDENT SCHOLARSHIP

Up to four awards of $3,000 each to assist Jordanian graduate students with the annual costs of their academic programs during the period May 1 of the award year through May 31 of the following year. Candidates must be Jordanian citizens and enrolled in either a Master’s or Doctoral program in a Jordanian university at the time of their application. Eligibility is limited to students in programs related to Jordan’s cultural heritage (for example: archaeology, anthropology, linguistics/epigraphy, history, conservation, museum studies, and cultural resource management related issues). Awarded who demonstrate excellent progress in their programs will be eligible to apply in consecutive years.

FREDERICK-WENGER MEMORIAL FELLOWSHIP

Two awards of $1,500 to assist two Jordanian students with the cost of their education. Eligibility is not limited to a specific field of study, but preference will be given to study related to Jordan’s cultural heritage. Candidates must be Jordanian citizens and currently enrolled as undergraduate or graduate students in a Jordanian university.

JORDANIAN TRAVEL SCHOLARSHIP FOR THE CONFERENCE TRAVEL AWARD

Two scholarships to assist Jordanians participating and delivering a paper at a high-quality international conference in the United States or Canada. One award of $3,500 for an in-person paper presentation; one award covering registration and membership fees for a paper presentation in a virtual conference. Any field of study related to ACOR’s mission is eligible for the award. (Poster presentations are not eligible.)
